Lilambd Sample Project

A source-audited sample of five public house-music playlists, their observable activity, owner legitimacy, and professional submission routes.

public playlists	Spotify saves observed	fresh within 7 days	explicit playlist-pitch route

Core finding

All five records can be traced to public Spotify pages and curator-controlled official routes. The route distinction matters: Soave explicitly invites playlist pitches; Defected, Toolroom, selected., and Spinnin' expose broader label or Talent Pool submission channels that do not promise playlist consideration.

This case study demonstrates verifiable research and disciplined uncertainty handling. It is not an endorsement of any curator, a placement guarantee, or legal advice.

1. Method: evidence before inference

Layer	What was captured	Rule
Spotify record	Public status, title, owner, saves, track count, duration, visible activity, genre text	Preserve Spotify's label 'saves'; do not rename it followers.
Curator record	Curator-controlled official site, professional route, organization-level legitimacy	No inferred emails, private contact enrichment, or scraped personal data.
Route classification	Playlist-specific, label A&R, or Talent Pool	A legitimate demo route is not automatically a playlist route.
Uncertainty	Exact timestamps, route scope, cadence conflicts, partner terms	Mark unresolved rather than fill gaps with assumptions.

Scoring model

The workbook uses a transparent 100-point score: evidence completeness 25%, activity 20%, public save signal 15%, route quality 20%, genre relevance 10%, and curator legitimacy 10%. It ranks evidence-ready records; it does not estimate editorial acceptance.

Score component	Decision rule
Activity	100 within 7 days; 80 within 30; 55 within 90; 25 after 90 days
Audience signal	Log-like brackets from under 10k to at least 1m public saves
Route	100 playlist-specific; 65 label A&R; 55 Talent Pool
Confidence	Evidence sufficiency only; never interpreted as placement probability

2. Comparative evidence view

Playlist	Owner	Public saves	Latest signal	Route class	Score	Confidence
Deep House 2026	selected.	7,981,249	6 days ago	Label A&R route; playlist placement is not promised	93.0	92%
Deep House Playlist 2026	Soave	100,425	Jul 13, 2026 (latest date visible in captured track rows)	Playlist-specific route; partner terms still require review	88.8	94%
New House Music 2026 Defected	Defected Records	56,182	6 days ago	Label A&R route; playlist placement is not promised	88.5	91%
Toolroom House 2026	Toolroom Records	63,425	3 days ago	Label A&R route; playlist placement is not promised	88.5	90%
Deep House Hits	Spinnin' Records	143,546	Jun 18, 2026	Label Talent Pool; playlist placement is not promised	79.8	85%

Interpretation

selected. leads because its Spotify audience signal is unusually large and the playlist showed recent activity. Soave's score benefits from the only cited route that explicitly invites playlist pitches, although captured visible track dates do not independently confirm the page's weekly-update claim. Toolroom and Defected are strong evidence records but expose label A&R routes, not a playlist guarantee. Spinnin' remains legitimate and reachable through its Talent Pool, but the visible playlist activity is older in this capture.

What this does not say

No score demonstrates organic listener quality, editorial independence, placement probability, price, or expected streams. Those require a different evidence program and, where applicable, the terms of the submission partner.

Operational handoff

A production engagement can expand the same pattern to a client-defined genre, territory, audience range, update window, or route type. Recommended delivery fields are retained in the workbook: raw public signal, observation date, confidence, unresolved fields, source URLs, route scope, legitimacy evidence, and formula-visible scoring.

Before any real submission

Recheck every current metric and route; read all partner and platform terms; confirm that the artist controls the submitted rights; disclose AI assistance where required; never pay for placement without a separate risk and policy review; and treat acceptance as discretionary.
